DR STANLEY MARCHANT

Elliott & Fry Ltd

Stanley Marchant

PRESIDENT OF THE R.A.M. CLUB

In a musical career, which began in boyhood, it is difficult to find an appointment which Dr Marchant has not held. It was but a step for the soloist at Christ Church, Lancaster Gate (where Dr Richards was organist) to the Sir John Goss Scholar at the R.A.M. which he was awarded by the Royal College of Organists, continuing his study of the organ under Dr Richards. The Battison Haynes Prize for composition and the Robert Newman Prize for organ-playing followed. On leaving the Academy in 1905 he was given the A.R.A.M.: the professorship of the organ came as a matter of course, and by 1917 he became a Fellow. But his connection with St Paul's began before he had left the Academy and has lasted for thirty years. On the invitation of Sir George Martin in 1903 he became Second Assistant Organist; in 1916 he was appointed Sub-Organist by the Dean and Chapter; and in 1927 Organist, on the sad death of Charles Macpherson, thus continuing the high tradition. It was natural that he should attain the Fellowship, and, later, the Presidency of the Royal College of Organists, and be chosen President of the Incorporated Society of Organists. At the age of thirty-one he graduated D.Mus. of Oxford, having passed his B.Mus. six years earlier, and still further, the Universities of London and Durham claimed his services as examiner. His church appointments have covered a space of twenty years till the exacting duties in the Cathedral demanded all his time. In the Queen's Hall Orchestra, from 1907 to 1915, he had his place as deputy organist and accompanist, and he is 'Master of the Musick' in the Samuel Pepys Club. His connection with St Paul's led to his becoming a Liveryman of the Worshipful Company of Musicians, and it is not surprising to learn that he is a Fellow—another!—of the Society of Antiquaries. During the War he was a 1st Class Musketry Instructor, Rifle Brigade, served in France, and was Bandmaster 23rd London Regiment.

It must not be thought that upon this unique record is based Dr Marchant's only claim to the consideration of the R.A.M. Club. The Club is proud to have him as President for qualities which, apart from his great musical attainments, mark him as a man of wide culture, of a delightful personality and a singleness of aim, and these the Club recognizes with great affection.

Orchestral Concert, December 8

The terminal Orchestral Concert on December 8 was distinguished by the brilliant playing of the orchestra under Sir Henry J. Wood. Elgar's Overture Cockaigne received a superb reading, in which every section stood out with the richest colour, the tone of the strings being specially bright and pure. The other strictly orchestral work was the Variations by Brahms on a theme of Haydn, less exacting, perhaps, but equally dependent on accuracy and balance. A work by Pick-Mangiagalli, named Sortilegi, for pianoforte and orchestra, contained much witchcraft for all concerned, and the difficult solo part was finely played by Margaret Chamberlain. On somewhat similar lines was the Burlesque in D minor, by Strauss, the solo pianoforte part being well interpreted by Gordon Felmingham. In striking contrast was a movement from Haydn's Violoncello Concerto in D, to which Florence Hooton gave breadth and purity of tone. A Concertino for Clarinet and Orchestra (MS.), by Raymond Bennell, student, the solo part of which was played by Eileen Tranmer, showed the quality and range of the instrument; and the second of the two movements, allegro molto, light in character, worthily established the composer as the Lionel Monckton Scholar. Mahry Dawes was clear and dramatic in the Scena and Aria from Verdi's Un Ballo in Maschera, Act II; and in the Aria from Tannhäuser, 'Blick' ich umher', Harold Child well sustained the even tone. The Violin Concerto in D minor, Op. 47, by Sibelius, the first movement of which was given, was played very finely by Doris Langham-Smith, who was at her ease in the 'uneasy' cadenza-like passages.

The programme gave forth a challenge to those who in ignorance of inevitable conditions criticize the personnel of a 'students' orchestra. It is not incumbent on any institution to produce medical certificates or contracts to explain why this or that orchestral player is absent. Those whose duties are to engage outside players, apart from students, have to reckon with prior, perhaps with more lucrative, engagements, and as things stand at present there is no orchestra in any school, or even in any established series of concerts, that can take the platform without an absentee. Those who have had any experience of writing for military bands know that allowances have to be made for men on leave or sick by 'cue-ing' in their parts, but this cannot be done in the case of modern orchestral music without incurring adverse comment.

The orchestra consisted of 145 players, of which the violins, violas and violoncellos numbered 100 students with one ex-student in the violas.

H. W. Richards, Mus.D., Hon. R.A.M., F.R.C.O., Hon. R.C.M., Warden

Great sympathy with Dr Richards on account of his health, and sadness because of his retirement, will be felt by all. For just forty years he has been associated with the Academy, beginning with his Professorship of the Organ, and for thirty-three years he has been closely identified with the Associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music.

Those who have been favoured with the inestimable gift of his friendship always bear in mind not only his gentle courtesy, but also his splendid courage and endurance in circumstances of which he manfully made little. To have carried on in spite of physical suffering, and to be ready and unfailing in help and advice are testimonies of character above all praise.

There are hundreds of students who can recall his gentle persuasiveness in difficulties, his understanding of the student mind, and his warm sympathy with anxieties and doubts. Assuredly they will not be the least of his well-wishers in his retirement.

Of his career as a musician it may be said that he lived his life to the full. An Associate of the Royal College of Organists at the age of seventeen, he became a Fellow when he was nineteen, and was chosen President of the College for the period 1925-1927. Another Presidentship fell to him in the Centenary Year, 1922, when he represented the R.A.M. Club. He has been an Examiner to the Associated Board since 1900, and Representative of the R.A.M. on that Board since 1917; Chairman of the Board of Studies in the University of London in 1925. He was elected Honorary R.A.M. in 1902 and graduated Mus.D., Durham, in 1903. In 1924 he was appointed Warden of the R.A.M., and his most recent distinction is that of Hon. R.C.M. Throughout his long years in the service of music he has been devoted to the Institution, and for thirty-six years he held the post of Organist of Christ Church, Lancaster Gate.

It is the heartfelt wish of all his friends that he may have before him many years of well-earned ease and quietness, and they hope that they will see him at the Academy from time to time.

Chamber Concert, October 30, 1933

The Chamber Concert on October 30, 1933, provided much attractive music. In Medtner's Pianoforte Sonata in C, Op. 11, No. 3 (in one movement), Eileen Ralph gave a sympathetic rendering with full understanding of the work. Moura Johnstone played two movements of the Bach-Busoni Toccata in C for pianoforte with fine touch. Three Etudes by Chopin were played by Beryl Rogers. There were two movements of a Mozart Sonata for Violin (Albert Chasey) and Pianoforte (Cyril Addison-Smith), and three Caprices (Paganini-Kreisler) for Violin were played by Edward Silverman with facility. The first movement of Mozart's Quartet in F for Oboe and Strings was very acceptable, with John Butterworth (oboe) and Beatrix Marr (violin), Max Gilbert (viola) and Peter Beavan (violoncello). Muriel Taylor's performance of Bax's Folk Tale for Violoncello was expressive, and Ailsa Nicol, in two songs by Schumann, displayed an even and pure register. Gordon Macdonald was dramatic in Iago's 'Credo' from Verdi's Otello. An admirable rendering of Rachmaninov's Vocalise, Op. 34, No. 14, was given by May Sabeston Walker, who in some measure appears to have made this 'song' her own. The concert ended with two movements from the Septet, Op. 65, by Saint-Saëns, played by Edward Silverman and Woolf Mernick (violins), Douglas Thomson (viola), Peter Beavan (violoncello), Richard Tildesley (double bass), Joyce Chapman (pianoforte) and Leopold Podder (trumpet). The ensemble playing of the students is so well established that the performance was assured, and a word must be said for the purity and restrained tone of Leopold Podder's trumpet playing.

Chamber Concert, December 4, 1933

In the Chamber Concert on December 4 the string players distinguished themselves. The String Quintet of Brahms in G, Op. 111, 1st movement, was brilliantly given by David Martin and Beatrix Marr (violins), Max Gilbert and Gordon Mutter (violas) and Florence Hooton (violoncello). Another quintet, for clarinet and strings (1st movement), was by Richard Tildesley, a student, which showed his grasp of this form. It was sympathetically played by Doris Langham-Smith and Sylvia Jaques (violins), Samuel Rosenheim (viola), Joseph Sack (violoncello) and Eileen Tranmer (clarinet). Vivacity entered into the performance of the 4th movement of Sir A. C. Mackenzie's pianoforte quartet, Op. 11, with Eileen Ralph at the pianoforte, Beatrix Marr (violin), Max Gilbert (viola) and Peter Beavan (violoncello). There was a Sarabande by Handel, arranged by Fiévet for four violoncellos, and an unaccompanied Suite for Violoncello by Bach. Leopold Podder played Blättermann's Concertino for Trumpet, in which he was equal to the exacting technique of the work. Pianoforte solos were played by Olive Cloke (Fugue from Variations and Fugue on a Theme by Handel, Brahms, Op. 24) with fine interpretation, and Joan Boulter's reading of two Etudes Tableaux of Rachmaninov had resource and strength. Janet Hamilton-Smith sang a group of songs (MSS.) by Raymond H. Bennell, written with a clarinet obbligato, and rendered sympathetically; two French songs were effectively sung by D. Marjorie Hughes; Arnold Bax was represented by two songs given by Harold Child; and Clifford Deri's enunciation of the words of songs by Ivor Atkins, Norman Peterkin and Hamilton Harty showed a clear appreciation of the words, associated with a fine voice. The accompanists were Guy Johnson, James Walker, Phyllis Spurr, Flora Brereton and Stella Goodger.

Drama and Opera

Many interesting events occurred during the last ten days of the Michaelmas Term, in which every branch of the Academy's activities was represented. On November 28 and 29 there were dramatic performances with double casts, in which twenty-six students took part. Maurice Baring's one-act play, Katharine Parr, and the pantomime, The Sleeping Beauty, by T. E. Ellis, were given with point and spirit, greatly helped by the incidental music to the pantomime composed by William Alwyn. There was an orchestra of students, conducted by Raymond H. Bennell.

The Opera Class has appeared in two 'practice rehearsals' in detached scenes from works in the repertory, and several of the students acquitted themselves with great credit to Miss Isobel McLaren and Mr Geoffrey Dunn, who were responsible for the productions.

A more ambitious operatic performance was given on December 6 when, under the direction of Miss McLaren, The Policeman's Serenade, by A. P. Herbert, was given with appropriate music by Phyllis Tate, an ex-student. This was followed by Trial by Jury, acted and sung with great vivacity. The students' orchestra, conducted by Walter Wilkinson, had full share in the success of both operas.

Professors' Chamber Concert

A Concert of unusual interest was given on October 19. The programme consisted of compositions by nine Professors of the R.A.M. With the exception of two songs with pianoforte accompaniment, all the works were assigned to string players and pianists in quartets and quintets. It would be out of place to particularize as far as the compositions are concerned, but mention must be made of the admirable readings of the groups of string players in the Ensemble Class, under the direction of Mr Herbert Withers. The singers, Janet Hamilton-Smith, Vera Rae-Stevens and Ernest Davies, distinguished themselves.

The New Music Society

On October 5 a Sonata for Oboe and Clarinet by Paul F. Bowles was played by Helen Gaskell and Alan Frank. This work is said to have found acceptance on the Continent. Then came Eric Cundell's Prize Quartet in C, Op. 27, played by the Griller String Quartet. Herbert Murrill's Prelude, Cadenza and Fugue were played by Alan Frank (clarinet) and Margaret Good (pianoforte). The last work was Arnold Bax's Quartet for Oboe and Strings—Helen Gaskell (oboe) and the Griller Quartet (strings). The striking qualities of these works were amply manifest.

On December 7 two trios, by Frank Bridge and Willem Pijper, were played by the Grinke Trio, Frederick Grinke (violin), Florence Hooton (violoncello) and Dorothy Manley (pianoforte). In character these works justified their selection. Reginald Paul played Casella's Sonatina for Pianoforte, and the first performance of William Alwyn's Pomegranates was given. It is for soprano voice (Lesley Duff) and pianoforte (Norman Franklin)—a work of moods and atmosphere.

The Concert on February 5 was eclectic enough to satisfy its patrons. It began with a Sonata for Violins (Miss Barbara Pulvermacher) and Pianoforte played by Mr Hubert J. Foss, its composer. A Sonata for Pianoforte by Mr Willem Pijper was played by Mr Egerton Tidmarsh. A song-cycle, Songs of the Doomed, by Mr Alan Bush (at the pianoforte) was sung by Mr Geoffrey Dunn. Mr Norman Demuth's work was entitled Funtington Tunes, five short movements played by the Elsie Owen String Quartet, led by herself, with Miss Jean Le Fevre (2nd violin), Miss Dorothy Lee (viola) and Miss Hildegard Arnold (violoncello). The same quartet played the Principal's String Quartet in E minor. The next concert is announced for March 19.

Liszt and Sir Alexander Mackenzie

In his book of reminiscences, A Musician's Narrative, Sir Alexander speaks of his meeting Liszt in Florence in the winter of 1884-85. On page 127 he quotes a passage from one of Liszt's letters to the Princess Carolyne Sayn-Wittgenstein, with whom he corresponded almost daily for years. She lived in Rome, and there was no limit to her demands for an account of all that concerned him. She was exacting, down to the smallest detail. She was his âme damnée.

Here is the quotation :

... Autres invités de la soirée d'hier: Mr Mackenzie, compositeur écossais—son opéra Colomba, d'après une nouvelle de Mérimée, et une cantate de lui ont été très applaudis à Londres. . . . (Florence, January 27, 1885.)

That this was not merely a passing bit of news, but an account of a meeting with Mr (as he then was) Mackenzie, that had made a deep impression on him, is shown by a further reference in another letter, written six or seven weeks earlier. This extract has come to light in the last few days, and was written, also in Florence, in December 1884. It is from Liszt to the Baroness Meyendorff, and the large collection of his letters to her are now in the possession of one of her sons, Baron Alexander Meyendorff, by whose kind permission it is here printed.

Vendredi, 12 Dec.

84. Rome.

... Je n'ai fait aucune visite à Florence où j'ai seulement revu chez Madame Hillebrand, Bonamici, Mackenzie,—un compositeur remarquable, d'origine écossaise, son opéra Colomba (d'après le roman de Mérimée) a eu succès prononcé à Londres: de même sa cantate dramatique 'Jason', une symphonie, et une composition symphonique (sur une Ballade de Keats) dont je vous recommande l'arrangement à 4 mains. Mackenzie dans l'âge de 30 à 40 ans au plus a publié déjà d'autres ouvrages, entre autres des Rhapsodies écossaises! Personnellement il est un Gentleman, et vient assez souvent à Florence—pour y travailler plus à l'aise qu'à Londres. . . .

It may be of interest to give the dates of the first performances of the works mentioned. The two Scottish Rhapsodies were performed in 1880 and 1881, Jason in 1882, La Belle Dame sans Merci in 1883, and Colomba in the same year. Sir Alexander was not yet forty when these letters of Liszt were written. They span half a century.

R.A.M. Club Annual Report 1933

The Committee has pleasure in presenting its 44th Annual Report.

During 1933 103 new members joined the R.A.M. Club, and the membership now shows the following figures: Town, 458; Country, 281; Overseas, 66; and Students, 234; making a total of 1,039. Fifty-six Student Members were transferred to the ex-students' branch.

Lord Gorell, C.B.E., M.C., M.A., presided over the Club's activities, and the usual three musical meetings were held.

Nicolas Orloff played at the first, held in March; Elsie Owen, Vivian Langrish and John Armstrong provided the music at the second in June; and Winifred Small and Maurice Cole appeared at the third in December.

All the meetings were well attended, and the Committee expresses its gratitude to the artists who so generously provided the music.

The Annual Dinner was again held at the Dorchester Hotel. Two hundred and eighty-two attended. A great many members and guests also accepted the invitation issued by the hotel authorities to stay on and dance in the supper-room.

The R.A.M. Club Prize was this time offered for the best performance of Sir Alexander Mackenzie's Pianoforte Quartet in E flat, Op. 11, and was won by Eileen Ralph, Beatrix Marr, Max Gilbert and Peter Beavan.

Four meetings of the Committee were held with an average attendance of eight members.

The Balance Sheet shows a slight excess of expenditure over income, owing to the unavoidable retirement of several members. It will be seen, however, that the financial position of the Club is still exceptionally sound, the funds showing assets amounting to £727 4s.

In accordance with the Club Rules the following officers retire:

The President. Four Vice-Presidents, viz., Mr Henry Beauchamp, Lieut.-General Sir G. Sidney Clive, K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., Mr Spencer Dyke, Mr Frederick Moore. Four members of the Committee, viz., Miss Katie Thomas, Miss Mary Wilson, Mr Theodore Holland, Mr Vivian Langrish.

The Hon. Treasurer, the Hon. Auditors and the Hon. Secretary also retire, but are eligible for re-election.

Students' Branch Report for 1933

In its Report for the year 1933 the Auxiliary Committee is happy to record a year of continued progress. Dances have been held at the end of each term. Mrs Norman O'Neill, Mrs Rowsby Woof and Mrs Wesley Roberts very kindly acted as hostesses on April 1, July 8 and December 9 respectively. We feel that these dances are an important factor in the promotion of friendly intercourse amongst members of the Club, and an incentive for non-members to join. We have discontinued the Wednesday meetings through insufficient attendance.

During the year the Committee received with much regret the resignations of Miss Elspeth Swanson, Mr Douglas Hawkridge, Mr George Willoughby and Miss Joan Davies, the Hon. Assistant Secretary, and to fill these vacancies the following members were elected: Mr Raymond Bennell, Miss Janet Hamilton-Smith, Miss Dorothy Peacock, Mr Eric Rickard, and Miss Avril Wright as Hon. Assistant Secretary.

The Committee wishes to express thanks to all who have so kindly shown interest and assisted in the welfare of the Club.

Annual General Meeting

The Annual General Meeting was held on January 27. In the unavoidable absence of Lord Gorell, Mr Keel was voted to the Chair. The preliminary business having been disposed of, the Honorary Secretary, Mr Brian Nash, then read the Report of the Committee, which is given on another page. The Report of the Students' Branch was also read. These were approved. The Financial Statement was laid before the Members, and after its discussion, was adopted. The election of Dr Stanley Marchant as President for the current year was carried by acclamation, after which the Honorary Officers were re-elected.

Review Week, Dec. 4 to Dec. 9, 1933

The Review Week, as in the past, included a variety of lectures on subjects broad enough to satisfy those in search of all sides of knowledge. Professor Gilbert Murray's lecture on the Greek Chorus, and Dr Cyril Norwood's on The Use of English, stood out from the more technical lectures on musical subjects. Madame Elsie Horne (pianoforte), Mr Ticehurst (harpsichord), Dr Eric Thiman (organ), Miss Gwendolen Mason (harp), Mr W. H. Reed (violin), Miss Flora Fairbairn (the dance), Mr John Armstrong (Old German Song) and Miss Ena Grossmith (the voice), while Mr W. R. Anderson had a very suggestive lecture on The Musicians' Changing World.

Intimate Opera

Those who have been interested in the progress of one-act operas on a small scale have been assured of an original and entertaining performance if it bears the name of Mr Geoffrey Dunn. Under the direction of Mr Frederick Woodhouse, in association with Miss Mabel Ritchie and Mr Dunn, this little company has been giving performances of Intimate Opera, and on December 14, at the Ballet Club in Ladbroke Road, they presented Bastien and Bastienne, by Mozart; Arne's Thomas and Sally; and La Serva Padrona, by Pergolesi, with original stage decorations and costumes in which each had a hand. Mr Woodhouse adapted and arranged Arne's Opera for string quartet, led by Mr Charles Woodhouse, with Norman Franklin at the piano. Mr Dunn was responsible for the texts of the first and last operas. The high merit of the performances depended on the intimacy with which words, music and action were expressed. Even an apparently trivial phrase in the accompaniment was given significance and translated into gesture. Mr Woodhouse played the heavy father as such a personage should be played. Miss Ritchie was Dresden-China-ish with purity of tone and admirable diction, and Mr Dunn, inexhaustible in ideas, whether in dresses, scenery or properties, gladdened the heart with his singing in his two parts, with his 'business' throughout, especially in La Serva Padrona, a dumb part, but for sheer joy nothing could beat his dancing a hornpipe in the Arne Opera. The whole was a memorable production, full of charm, wit and originality, admirably fitted for a tiny theatre with its tiny stage, in which never a point could be missed.

Brahms' Centenary, Nov. 1, 1933

It was fitting that the Centenary of the Birth of Brahms should have a place in the observances of the Academy, and the evening of November 1 was devoted to this object. The programme consisted of two works, the String Sextet in G, Op. 36, and the Requiem. Of the first, the string-players were not behind former memorable executants, and acquitted themselves with insight. In the Requiem, conducted by Mr Ernest Read, the soloists were Margaret Haslett and Harold Child and George Scott baritones, with an efficient orchestra and Norman Askew at the organ. In a performance given as an act of piety and homage to Brahms criticism is silent, but it suffices to say that the high standard of choral singing was admirably maintained.

The Late Mrs Fred Walker

By the death of Mrs Fred Walker, the widow of the professor of singing who for years was held in high esteem, the Academy has lost a constant and loyal friend. No gathering at the R.A.M. seemed complete without her genial presence, and her interest in, and encouragement of, all the Institution stood for were unabated till her health broke down on the eve of her reaching her four score and tenth year. Hers was a brave life and a long one, and was a fine testimony to the steadfast hold that the R.A.M. had upon her heart. Those who knew her, and will miss her, hope by this tribute to keep her memory green.

By the terms of her will, published in The Times of January 3, 1934, she left:

£2,000 to the Royal Academy of Music to found a 'Fred Walker Scholarship', to be awarded once in every two years to singers or students in singing subjects, natural-born subjects of the British Empire, to be awarded as far as possible to male and female candidates alternatively; £100 to the same, the income to be devoted to the maintenance in perpetuity of the Fred Walker Prize, founded by her; £100 to the Students' Aid Fund 'as a gift in memory of Fred Walker'.

The Library

By the great kindness of Mrs Radford a collection of the band parts of the late Mr Robert Radford's bass songs has been presented to the R.A.M. They will be of great usefulness as they have been transposed into lower keys to suit the compass of a deep voice, and they will form a fitting memorial of a great singer whose loss is ever deplored. The most grateful thanks to Mrs Radford for the kind thought conveyed by this gift.

The Library has received from Miss Christine Ratcliffe an important addition to the collection of miniature scores already catalogued, and numbering about five hundred works. Thanks are due to Miss Ratcliffe for copies which are constantly in demand. The opportunity is here taken to remind members and students that the scores are available for studying the works that they are about to hear in the Duke's Hall, at Queen's Hall, and elsewhere.

Social and Musical Evening, Dec. 8

A Social and Musical Evening was held on December 8, and was largely attended by members of the R.A.M. Club and their guests. In the absence of the President, Lord Gorell, the reception was presided over by Mr Spencer Dyke. A short programme was given, Sonatas by Beethoven and Ireland for violin (Miss Winifred Small) and pianoforte (Mr Maurice Cole). Mr Cole also played the Bach-Busoni arrangement of the Choral Prelude 'Ich ruf' zu dir, Herr ' and Chopin's Scherzo in B minor. A dance followed after the usual refreshments.

Junior School

If the extensive programmes of December 2 and 4 are a guide, the Junior School is flourishing. It is too soon to forecast exceptional talent in any of the young persons who took the platform with such gravity, but much must be said for the patience and care of the teachers and the organization of Miss Lucy Welch. On the second evening the L.C.C. Junior Exhibitors showed ample proof of the results gained from having been taught by members of the Teachers' Training Course in several branches of study.

Notices

1—'The R.A.M. Club Magazine' is published three times a year and is sent gratis to all members on the roll.

2—Members are asked kindly to forward to the Editor any brief notices relative to themselves for record in the Magazine.

3—New Publications by members are chronicled but not reviewed.

4—All items for insertion should be sent to the Editor of 'The R.A.M. Club Magazine', Royal Academy of Music, York Gate, N.W.1.

The Committee beg to intimate that ex-Student Members who desire to receive invitations to the Students' Meetings should notify Mr H. L. Southgate at the Royal Academy of Music.

N.B.—Tickets for meetings at the Academy must be obtained beforehand, as money for guests' tickets may not be paid at the door. Disregard of this rule may lead to refusal of admittance.
